MU alum Damon Romine will talk about his experiences in the entertainment industry. He will share stories about his years in Hollywood—from interning at Days of Our Lives to working with George Takei—and offer advice to students who are interested in a similar career path.

Romine’s career has spanned entertainment reporting to being in the public eye as an advocate working to improve diversity in media. He is the national director of communications and marketing at Screen Actors Guild—American Federation of Television and Radio Artists. In this position, he serves as the union’s brand ambassador and manages external communications, social media platforms, and publications. Romine’s SAG-AFTRA team holds awards for communications excellence given by PRWeek, the Public Relations Society of America, the International Labor Communication Association, and Graphic Design USA.

From Mizzou to Hollywood
Lessons Learned in the Communication & Entertainment Industry

Damon Romine, BA, BJ ’88
SAG-AFTRA

April 22, 2015, 6:00 p.m.
Benton Bingham Ballroom
N214–N215 Memorial Union

MU alum Damon Romine will talk about his experiences in the entertainment industry. He will share stories about his years in Hollywood—from interning at Days of Our Lives to working with George Takei—and offer advice to students who are interested in a similar career path.

Romine’s career has spanned entertainment reporting to being in the public eye as an advocate working to improve diversity in media. He is the national director of communications and marketing at Screen Actors Guild—American Federation of Television and Radio Artists. In this position, he serves as the union’s brand ambassador and manages external communications, social media platforms, and publications. Romine’s SAG-AFTRA team holds awards for communications excellence given by PRWeek, the Public Relations Society of America, the International Labor Communication Association, and Graphic Design USA.